

Frederick County Main Streets Public Art Project

Virtual Community Workshop

Art is coming to your Main Street! This Fall, five of the Frederick County Main Street areas will be installing temporary public art sculptures across the County. Sculptures will be located in downtown Frederick, New Market, Thurmont, Middletown and Brunswick.

The sculptures, designed and created by Maryland artist Parran Collery (www.earthahandmadetile.com) will be composed of brightly glazed mosaic tile designs.

Originally, hands-on community workshops were planned for Spring 2020. As we do our best to keep our communities safe, we have re-imagined the community workshops. Community members from each of the participating Main Streets will still have the unique opportunity to design tiles to be included in the final sculpture for their own Main Street.

By lending your creativity to this project, your artwork will become part of a public project, and your artist hand will join with others to create a vibrant and joyful vision!

Up to 60 submissions from each of the Main Street areas will be translated into individual clay tiles that will be included in the final sculpture.

All of us have a creative spirit in our hearts, and this project is open to anyone who has the desire – no special skills needed. Read on for directions for the project, and have fun!
